Description:

Review "Tim Gregory captures the essence of Dekker's story of war and peace, love and loss. Drawing clear definitions of the characters, Gregory displays his talents with soft intonations for the priests, harsh and gruff accents for the soldiers, a sweet tone for the women, and even innocent voices for the children. Portraying the main character, Jan, from his early years at the end WWII in Bosnian territory to his later years as a writer, Gregory projects the pain that Jan experiences when the brutality of war comes back to haunt him in the company of an evil that must be defeated. Dekker's story is complicated, making this production best for the seasoned listener."
